Fellow Philatelists and Friends:

ALOHA and WELCOME to HAPEX-86, commemorating the 50th anniversary of Pan American Airways Pacific Clipper Flights. The year 1935 started the period of commercial airmail delivery in the Central Pacific region via these large "flying boats" better known at "Clippers". The first three clipper ships used by Pan American for the commercial delivery of mail were Martin M-130's. They were assigned the names "China Clipper", "Philippine Clipper", and "Hawaii Clipper" to signify their ports of call and are generally referred to by these names. The inaugural flights of these three clippers were November 22, 1935, December 9, 1935, and May 2, 1936, respectively.

For those who would like to learn more about the aerophilatelic flights of Hawaii and the Central Pacific, I refer you to the excellent book written by L. Jack Crampon of the same title, published by the Hawaiian Philatelic Society in 1980.

The Hawaiian Philatelic Society takes pleasure in sponsoring this exhibition. 1984 was the 25th Anniversary of Hawaiian Statehood and the Society has philatelic items that were made especially for the occasion including first day covers and anniversary day covers. There is a special order page for items the Society has for sale in this program, or you can check at the Society's Philatelic Sales Table. The Society also publishes information on various facets of philately. These are also available at the sales table. If you are interested in joining the Society there is a Membership Application at the end of this program. Thank you for coming to HAPEX-86 and we hope you enjoy the exhibition.

1935-1936 Clipper Flights to Hawaii

For those of you who were around the morning of November 23, 1935, in Honolulu a momentous event occurred. For on that date the famous China Clipper of Pan American Airways arrived in Honolulu to inaugurate United States trans-Pacific Airmail Service to the Philippines and return. Mail was prepared with special cachets by the United States Post Office and several different private cachets for each of the scheduled stops. In Honolulu the event was celebrated and reported on the front page of an extra edition of the Honolulu Advertiser with banner headlines.

When this clipper ship left Alameda, California on the afternoon of November 22 there were on board 110,866 pieces of mail destined for delivery in Hawaii, Guam, and the Philippines. Much of this mail was philatelic in nature, but much was also commercial. Examples of many of the official and unofficial cachets may be seen at this exhibition. Many of these early flight envelopes have survived and may be purchased from your friendly dealer at reasonable prices. Very complete listings of the flights and cachets may be found in the American Air Mail Catalogue compiled and published by the American Air Mail Society. (Incidentally the Hawaiian Philatelic Society library contains this set of catalogues for the use of members.)

In addition to the information contained in the American Air Mail Catalogue, there have been many articles written in the philatelic press concerning these flights. One of the most comprehensive listing of these flights is found in "Aerophilatelic Flights Hawaii & Central Pacific 1913-1946", by L. J. Crampon and published in 1980 by the Hawaiian Philatelic Society. In this seventy page volume are many flights not listed in the American Air Mail Society catalogue for various reasons. In fact the author states that exactly 50.5% are listed. Many of the survey flights and training flights are chronicled, whether or not mail was officially carried. Photocopies of most cachets are included as well as illustrations of the various postal markings.

For the serious student of aerophilately these early clipper flights to and from Hawaii still offer a rewarding field of study, even if you were not in Honolulu on November 23, 1935 for the arrival of the China Clipper.
