HAWAII TOWN MARK IDENTIFIER

Kay H Hoke

How many of you have had that Town mark in which you could see maybe two or three consecutive letters but nothing else clearly? If those letters were maybe AHA or AWA what town might this be? There are eight and seven towns respectively that match the examples. So how does one determine what town is probably correct or in fact what are the possible towns? One of the first thing that most do is to pull out the Meyer-Harris or Burns books and flip to the alphabetical listing of town marks. And then the fun starts, for both of these publications list the towns by island only. So one has to search through each island to be sure of the identification. Of course if there is any indication on the town mark of the island the searching is much less. Also, where in the town mark are the three letters located? If at the front or the end the process is fairly easy, however if in the middle somewhere it can be very difficult to determine.

To address this problem I constructed sometime back a list of all of the town marks in Hawaii from the earliest Monarchy days to the end of the Republic and then alphabetized the list. In this past year with the Po'olekas' revival I felt the list would be nice to publish, especially after Louis Loucks indicated he planned to do a comprehensive series on the post offices of Hawaii. In cooperation with Lou, I constructed the list from towns and postmasters found in Meyer-Harris, both volumes of Burns "Additions to Hawaiian Postal History", and the volumes of "Thrums Annual" (1875-1901). There are a few spelling differences in these sources but hopefully what we have has the generally accepted spellings.

On the next few pages you will find the lists. To use the list take the two or three consecutive letters you can identify and scan the middle columns to see what possible matches there might be. When there is more than one match you look at the remainder of the cancel and the various possible towns to see what is the best match. Various items about the town mark can be used to generally identify the proper town. To use the first example AHA lets look at the possibilities from the table.

1	HALE AHA	Oahu
2	K AHA KULOA	Maui
3	K AHA LUU	Oahu
4	KALUA AHA	Molokai
5	KEK AHA	Kauai
6	L AHA INA	Maui
7	L AHA INA SUGAR CO.	Maui
8	P AHA LA	Hawaii

Notice there are no towns with these letters at the beginning. If at the end there are three possibilities, #1, #4 & #5. Now all of you hope it is #1 as no strikes have been reported from Haleaha and we all want to find a new strike. If you can find something else to identify the island then it is easy to determine if it is #4 or #5. If the letters are someplace in the middle then we are left with #2, #3, #6, #7 or #8. Any additional letters should allow you to identify which of these five. Once again the hope is high that it is either #2, #3 or #7 as no strikes have been reported from these locations. Happy Hunting!

Technical Notes: The table was constructed in WordPerfect's Table feature. The town name was entered in one column and replicated to the next two columns. Then the row was replicated the requisite number of times. Finally the excess characters were deleted from each column to create the town name as one expanded three column name. Finally the entire table was sorted in sequence on column two, one, and three respectively. In the case of multiple word town names the leading space in the second and subsequent words was deleted in the middle column to improve readability. The space was left though as the middle character to show that there are words on both sides and as the last character to show there is a word following. All table lines except those between islands were removed to improve readability.
